It is an exasperating thing for the Giants to fall asperating thing for the Giants to fall by the wayside just at this critical stage. However, the game of yesterday has melted into a gloomy past. It is in to-day that the Giants are centring their hopes and ambitions. They will stand firmly or fall ignobly in to-day's game. The champions are a hard team to beat when they set their batting clothes brushed up. Boston will put up her strongest front in Nichola, and New York will present Rusie. The game will be called at $6$ this afternoon.

What is the use of laying out anicepros-pectus for the Giants? They generally make a silp-up and disappoint their friends. Yesterday's game was a fear-fully bitter one to relinquish.

German could not rise to the occasion. "Dad" Clarke kept rising and failing. If the writer is not mistaken Westerveit fooled the Clevelands nicely in the West. Wonder why Capt. Ward didn't give the Jersey lad a shy at his former easy prey?

Semebody asked very pertinently yes-terday, "What capital is there behind the new Atlantic Lesgue? And who has it?" Very often leagues do not require much ready cash. A little money and a whole bundle of aplomb (that sounds better than nerve) will jolly the public. The percentages to-day are:
